

accommodations of the faculty. The rent paid will fully compensate for the cost of the building occupied by the Professors and Students.

The city is interested, in various ways, in this successful medical and surgical enterprise. Heretofore no medical school has borne the name of medical and surgical teaching. The Writers of the city have made their gathering of annual reports to medical and surgical fame, while their annual disbursements have amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars, thus bestowing, beyond the influence of the Diploma, the citizens at large.

Such an institution, naturally excites the jealousy of competing schools, and will doubtless, continue to be felt at all points of competition in this Department. We trust, however, that the free and open privilege which all Colleges alike enjoy, will lead to no acts which will tend to abridge or circumscribe it.

THE AUXILIARY PRISONS.
are guarded with fidelity and integrity, and should share with the parent prison, the credit for good order and security which pervades the whole.

THE FIFTY-SEVENTH STREET PRISON.
has been added to the list of prisons for the last year. Its magnitude is beyond our present requirements, and its construction will reflect from our general views of necessity or propriety.

At all events, we look to the Medical Board for an appropriate and safe professional reputation in trying with estimation whatever may come respecting before them touching the interests of this Department.

We regret delays while we have ready taken place in responding to requests made by the Commissioners, which were given us in full intention to comply with.

The greatest progress we have made has been in opening wide the doors of our institutions to medical and surgical science. The success of our efforts in this direction, will only be attained in the student's heart, so as to make the city the great center of collegiate preparation. Over these hundred students have entered the College Hospital College during the last term, and the Institution bids fair to equal, if not exceed, the elder and more renowned colleges. The extension of the Dead-House, Coroner's room, and other requisite rooms of the Hospital, are now completed, and the number of students is increased.

We venture to say that the experience and success which this connection with our Hospital gives is worthy of being considered and adopted by other hospitals throughout the country.

The following table presents the aggregate as well as the detailed statement of the students of the various colleges having access to the hospitals of this Department:

February 16, 1864.

The foregoing does not, of course, give the whole number of students of the college named, but only those who have registered their names at the Winter attending Clinical Instruction.

No doubt many came from all the colleges who neglected to register their names, but the foregoing shows a fair average of those who did attend.

disclaims the entire supply of Medicinal Agents, for the Merchant. In his hands, and those who assist him, is held a high degree of the Professional and Medical Staff and the lives of patients, as well as the economy of his office. Savings have been made by attention to details, which, especially in this Department, are a prominent portion of the whole service.

No doubt many came from all the colleges who neglected to register their names, but the foregoing shows a fair average of those who did attend.

THE APOTHECARY.

The expenditures of this Bureau have been $19,000 less than last year, which is accounted for largely by the keeper arriving in time to take charge of the office, and that is due to the saving that the under-keeper should be left out of the mass of claims that obstruct the way to just relief.

SUPPLIES.

The supplies of the Department of Beef and Mutton have been reduced by the contract made in February last, and with expense very few exceptions have been furnished with promptness and fidelity.

Or semi-monthly requisitions, as well as the disposals of items of the Department articles over and not required, have been under the care of Mr. Speiman, our agent, who takes full and strict account of the day of purchase and sale we owe our acknowledgement.
